

IMAGE DISTRIBUTION IN DATA PROCESSING SYSTEMS

ABSTRACT

15

Distributing images in a data processing system, including receiving in a client a document for display, the document comprising markup according to a markup language, the document further comprising an image group identifier identifying a group of images; retrieving the images, from a server in the data processing system, 20 in dependence upon the image group identifier; and displaying the images on the client according to the markup.